Personal and Social Skills

I am comfortable in relating withing groups where different individuals have to coexist and converge to pursue a common goal.

I believe I have good management and coordination skills and I get satisfying results when I am entrusted with organizational tasks, prioritizing the central elements of the work and removing the superfluous.

My university experience was crucial to improve my rhetoric and my dialectic, helping me to express myself clearly and concisely.

Non-professional Interests

I have a vivid interest in the cultural sphere and I have always been strongly committed to the improvement of my knowledge, which I consider essential for the development of the individual, through the approach to various subjects outside of my curriculum.

I usually spend my spare time reading, especially novels ranging from classical to contemporary writers, or listening to music.

Other interests I try to cultivate in my free time are music, cinema and sport. Since high school I've always been fascinated by critics and journalism so, nowadays, I occasionally write articles on internet pages dedicated to technical and sporting analysis trying to satisfy my passion as a writer.
